BRITTAIN SPEAKS
AT F. S. SCHOOL

Mr. Herbert Gruber Has General Manager of Export and Import Board of Trade at Baltimore as Special Guest—Speaks on "Bills of Lading."

Mr. Herbert W. Gruber, Lecturer in Commerce, the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, had as a special guest on Tuesday evening, March 18, Mr. William Brittain, General Manager of the Export and Import Board of Trade of Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Brittain gave a very instructive talk on "The Origin, Development and Functions of a Bill-of-Lading." He differentiated between statute and common law and showed how customs and localities were established by the establishment of common law out of which grew the bill-of-lading. While the bill-of-lading of itself is not a contract of carriage, but a contract of receipt of reliability of the carrier, that it is not a negotiable instrument the same as a bill-of-exchange; that a bill-of-lading is negotiable; and that it is negotiable only when legally secured; and that it is not a receipt, but acts as such and also gives the carrier the right to carry. He explained the different kinds of bills-of-lading. As responsibilities of carriers increased, the number of clauses in the bill-of-lading relieving them of that responsibility. He also explained the effect or control of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Tariff Act, and the Transportation Act on the Bill-of-Lading.

PRIZE DEBATE HELD AT LAW SCHOOL

Negative Wins Decision in Splendid Contest O’Donoghue Chosen Best Speaker.

The fourth prize debate was held by the Junior and Senior Debating Societies Friday evening, March 21, at the Law School. The question of debate being, Resolved: "That the United States adopt a constitutional amendment providing for the exemption of property." The affirmative was upheld by Francis J. Fitzgerald, '24, of Pennsylvania; George E. O’Donoghue, '26, of the District of Columbia; Irving C. Godstein, '25, of the District of Columbia and T. E. McKenzie, '25, of Montana, alternate.

The negative was upheld by Martin F. O’Donoghue, '26, of the District of Columbia; Irving C. Godstein, '25, of the District of Columbia and T. E. McKenzie, '25, of Montana, alternate.

Both sides of the question were well argued. The negative side was certainly the strongest argument. They were the members on both teams. After lengthy deliberation, the negative side won. The award was made to Mr. O’Donoghue of the negative side as the best speaker and was given his lecture on Cuba in many of the large cities of the United States, and it has been received very favorably.

Last evening at the Georgetown Visitation Convention was given the first of a series of combination lectures on "Hamlet," soon to be presented by the Mask and Bauble Class, together with the rendition of "Hamlet"; Frank Ruffer, who analyzed "The Dramatic Structure of" Sweeney, who commented upon "Hamlet," and Mr. Thompson, who discussed "The Question of Hamlet’s Insanity."
Prominent Washington Realtor heard at Second Meeting—Excellent Talk Well Received.

On Sunday evening, March 23, the Pathfinders’ Club held its regular weekly meeting in the First Library. The speaker of the evening was Mr. B. F. Saul, president of the B. F. Saul Realty Co. and prominent Washington business man, who addressed the club on the subject of the real estate business as a field for the college man.

"The subject of real estate," said Mr. Saul, "can be discussed from many different angles, offering a wide range and variety. In a brief, informal discussion of this subject, it is difficult to decide just where to begin and just where to end. It can be handled from the economic standpoint, the legal or technical standpoint, or from the standpoint of a business venture. Time does not permit a very comprehensive or adequate treatment of either of these various phases. There is, however, one angle from which this subject can be discussed briefly, without injecting too many details, technicalities, and that is the professional aspect of the real estate business. He then gave a rapid sketch of the recent developments in the real estate business, recounting the efforts of far-sighted leaders in this field to raise it to a professional plane and in particular the work of the National Association of Real Estate Boards along this line. Starting fifteen years ago, this association has grown steadily, until today it is represented by 500 local real estate boards, has a membership of upwards of 20,000 real estate brokers, and exercises a tremendous influence on the business in all sections of the country. "Realizing the responsibilities and obligations that rest on those engaged in real estate practice, the original organizers of this National Association conceived the idea of a definite set of rules and practices and adopted a code of ethics as the first step of the ethical movement among real estate men. This code of ethics must be accepted by every individual member in all parts of the country; and his membership in a constituent local real estate board presumes that he is conducting his business in accordance with the code of ethics adopted by the National Association."

Mr. Saul then launched into a discussion of the real estate business in general; its aims and ideals; its problems and possibilities; its sacrifices and rewards. "One of the peculiarities of the real estate business, and which applies more particularly to the real estate business than any other, is that the periods of depression are more frequent and more lasting. Over a period of 30 years, 60 per cent of the time has probably been unprofitable and men in business of this character have at times been hard hit. Forty per cent of the time has been prosperous, but periods of depression occur every few years which cause salesmen to drift back into other classes of salesmanship. While periods of depression affect all classes of business, they are felt less in those lines dealing in commodities that are used in every-day life, such as food and clothes, than in a class of business dealing with investments."

Concerning the real estate business as a field for a young man just starting out in the world, Mr. Saul said: "A broad knowledge of the business in general is most essential and it would be most advisable for a prospective broker to spend possibly a year in each of the rent, mortgage, sales, and insurance branches of the business. And again, referring to the periods of depression that particularly characterize this business: "It is necessary, therefore, for the young man who is going to be able to take advantage of the prosperity that follows."

Discussing educational preparation for this work, Mr. Saul continued: "In addition to ethics and the license law, there is another very important work being conducted by the National Association in its efforts to raise the real estate business to a professional level and this is its educational program. Through collaboration with educators and economists the National Association is developing a group of text-books to be used in educational work covering the subject of real estate. It has fostered and conducted scores of elementary lecture courses in various parts of the country through the co-operation of E. M. C. A. branches and other educational institutions. Several colleges have instituted extension courses covering the fundamentals of real estate, and two universities have actually added a four-year under-graduate course leading to a bachelor degree in real estate. As soon as sufficient text material is developed covering the technical phases of real estate practice, including appraising, taxation, zoning, conveying, and other such subjects, universities generally will install definite under-graduate courses to meet the needs of this growing profession."

In concluding, Mr. Saul said: "There are rumors, of course, of certain salesmen who have started within the last few years who are reputed to have made a great deal of money without experience. This result, of course, has been because of abnormal periods and a great many sales have been made which were in reality simply taking orders. Many men who have been successful salesmen in periods of prosperity have drifted out of the business and into other fields in periods of depression. The most successful individual, however, in many instances is not the one who realizes that success is the result of hard work and is dependent on his ideas of fairness to the public with whom he comes in contact."

Next Sunday the club will hear Dr. Ernest A. Place of Philadelphia, who will talk on the medical profession.

John Hancock Said:—

(IN 1774)

"I have ever considered it as the indispensable duty of every member of society to promote, as far as in them lies, the prosperity of every individual, but more especially of the community in which he belongs. Life insurance is inseparably bound up with the prosperity of every individual, family and community. It is a secure and prosperous business and satisfactory to the salesman in every way.

The John Hancock will like to interest a few ambitious men who graduate this year to make John Hancock selling their life work. Statistics on college graduates who have entered life insurance place it at the very top as a source of income. Before making a decision as to your career it would be well to make inquiries of the "Agency Department."
NOTICE TO ALL STUDENTS.

The School of Foreign Service is very pleased to announce that arrangements have been completed by Mr. Daniel E. Casey, professor in the course of Export Sales Practice in the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, to give a series of four special lectures on advertising. These lectures will be given on consecutive Tuesday evenings at 5:10 P. M., starting Tuesday, March 25th. The four lectures will cover the following topics:

"What Advertising Is and Does."
Marketing Campaigns.
The Advertising Agency and Its Work.
Dealer Aids.
The Writing of Copy.
Catalogues, House Organs, Booklets, Folders, etc.
Motion Pictures and Lantern Slides.
Advertising Mediums:
Magazines.
Newspapers.
Export Publications.
Trade Publications.
Consumer Periodicals.
Street Car Advertising.
Billboards, Posters, etc.

These lectures are given as a part of the course of lectures on Export Sales Practice. They will be attended by the members of the Export Sales Practice Class. In addition an invitation is extended to all other students of the School, who have no classes at these hours, to hear the interesting lectures on one of the most vital factors in modern Sales Practice.

Mr. A. J. Poirier, who received a certificate last month from the School of Foreign Service, has accepted a position in New York City.

The School of Foreign Service is very proud of the following news of Mr. Zanetti, winner of the highest record in the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University during the past semester.

Mr. Zanetti was born in the United States in 1895, but was taken to Italy several years later. He made several trips back to the United States. Practically all of his schooling was gained in Italy, including the completion of high school work there, and also a course in the College of Agriculture, from which he graduated.

In December, 1914, he volunteered for service in the Italian Army and was later promoted to be First Lieutenant in the Alpine Troops. He served in the army until a year after the Armistice. Shortly after this time he returned to New York, with whom he stayed for about a year and a half. He left the employ of the export and import firm in New York, with whom he stayed for about a year and a half ago to take up his present position at the Italian Embassy.

One of the highest records in the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University during the past semester was made by Mr. G. Zanetti, who, besides being a student in the School of Foreign Service, is a member of the Staff of the Royal Italian Embassy, assigned to the Commercial Counselor.

Mr. Zanetti was born in the United States in 1895, but was taken to Italy several years later. He made several trips back to the United States. Practically all of his schooling was gained in Italy, including the completion of high school work there, and also a course in the College of Agriculture, from which he graduated.

JOSEPH J. CHARLES.

While attempting to extinguish the blaze under the grandstand at Mass. A. U. a week or two ago, the intrepid Jay Gibe thought it would be a good opportunity to interview the manager of the Baseball Team. Joe has found hospitality at the park by attempting to pick the foul balls. With a boyish smile and twist of his cap he answered the interview. The usual remark of "having nothing to say" has by this time lost all of its charm except a certain truth and style, so Joe didn't use it. He merely walked off and pretended to look over a list of proposed games.

When asked to explain Baseball, the manager went on to umbrage his tongues and told this story of his own personal experience.

"When I hit the home run, and was rounding fifth base, Walter called 'Foul!' I went over to Walter, climbed off my bicycle and said 'Walter, why did you call that a foul?' And Walter said, "Why, Joe, I just went off to the centerfielder's head.' So I gave him the fifty United Cigar Coupons and—"

But Joe's life is now over. He is not on the diamond every afternoon, sleeping in the sun. Some afternoons he may be found in the cool recesses of the Literati. The other day he was heard to remark that although New York was not the Rome of the Literati, if the Literati were graduated and perhaps it was for the closely

MISLEADING.

If the Senior Class of the City College of New York in conducting a popularity contest, was seeking publicity, it has failed. It did win notoriety.

In voting the "Decameron" its favorite classic prose work, "Artists and Models" one of the best current theatrical productions, and "If Winter Comes" one of the best current theatrical productions, and "The Walls" a publication of a new athletic field at that point.

It is not too late to take an active interest in the many medal contests of the season.

MORONIC.

The rise of the moron has been one of the most striking of recent phenomena. Morons as a whole yet remain unapparent. Mr. Mencken lumps them all under the same seat, fight after fight. I must add that there is a certain triteness and truth, so Joe didn't use it. He merely walked off and pretended to look over a list of proposed games.

BOWDOIN STARTS HILLTOP GAMES

Somewhat crippled Maine Squad

Will Display Its Ability Here

Next Monday Afternoon—Local College Nine Primed for Contest.

Though badly crippled by the absence of its coach, Ben Homer, who is out with a dislocated hip, and the loss of services of three veteran outfielders, Bowdoin College’s nine will make its southern trip next week fully confident of its ability to give all of its opponents the stiffest kind of opposition. The Blue and White diamonders will open Georgetown’s college season next Monday. The Friday prior to playing in Washington, Bowdoin will be in action against the Hoyas.

Frost Eligible.

The absence of a one-year or Freshman ruling at Bowdoin means that the Pine Tree State aggregation will be materially strengthened by the presence of several newcomers in their ranks who are optimistically sure of either securing a regular berth on the nine or at least of making the team. It is expected that catcher’s shoes will be filled by Gil Vaux, ’27, who has played for the New York Athletic Club, and is one of the freshmen showing up so well. Les Blake, ’25, will probably be second string catcher. The two only pitchers who are sure of making the trip are Larry Southwick and Stanley Robinson. Both of these men have shown that they have a lot on the ball, although Robinson has been slowed up somewhat recently by a slow heel; Gray and Shirley are also among certain of making the trip. Although these two will probably go as pitchers, Shirley could be used as an outfielder because of his hitting ability, and in a pinch Gray could be used as a catcher. Among his batting pitcher with the bat of the right hand he will probably be either Rice, Stafford, or Hagar. Hodlith, Stafford was set back a great deal recently by a severe illness.

G. U. Line-up Undecided.

Though Georgetown has been outdoors practicing now for a period of several days. At the time of writing it is almost impossible to give out any definite or even probable line-up in view of the many changes that Coach O’Reilly is daily making in a wise way. Several very promising freshmen in the line-up for the outset of the campaign, and to properly fill these is essential he employ this means to make the starting line-up will hardly be made known to Hilltoppers until the official game begins. All of the Blue and Gray men are apparently in fine shape and are anxious to get going.

Homer Jenkins, southpaw, Ken Jones, Ed Tabor, and McCarthy, all veterans, along with the sensational Don Brennan and promising Frank Gillespie of the 1923 Yearling nine, are ready to twirl as definite blue and gray men. Among one of the several newcomers in their ranks who are sure of a position in the outer gardens. Asa Small, one of the top hitters on the team. This will be no new departure because of his hitting ability, and it is equally apparent that he will give a good account of himself if given the opportunity. If Mal Morrell should have to catch, a change in the infield would be necessitated. Fourteen men will make the trip, two catchers, four infielders, five pitchers, and five outfielders. After playing Georgetown, Bowdoin will journey to New York, where they will try conclusions with Columbia.

harm. Mr. Rice showed that it was a failure because it had aroused the resentment of many law-abiding citizens through its odious provisions and the circumstances connected with it. Mr. Burke suggested that the enforcement act be revised to permit the sale of beverages with 2.75 per cent of alcohol and so give the people a non-intoxicating drink that they would be satisfied with.

The strongest of the arguments of which the Georgetown men disposed in a series of animated and vigorous rebuttals was that the type of liquor to be permitted by the new act would be intoxicating and therefore forbidden by the constitutional amendment. Gaston Hall was almost completely filled by the supporters of each university, who enjoyed the clash of arguments on the question that was popular enough to be understood and to be of interest to all.
Philonomosian.

Last Monday evening the regular meeting of the Philonomosian was held in the Philodemic Room. The subject for the evening's debate was, "Resolved, that Congress should adopt a uniform divorce law?" The affirmative was upheld by Messrs. Thiel and Blessing, and the negative by Messrs. Gaffey and Gillan. On account of the vitality of the subject, a most interesting debate was indulged by the members of the society. After a vote was taken, the decision was awarded to the affirmative and Mr. W. Gillan was chosen as best speaker of the evening.

A Questions Committee, composed of Messrs. Daly, Fee and Wholhey, was appointed for the coming month. Mr. John Dennis Shea, '26, was elected to the society.

The regular meeting of March 13 being postponed on account of the feast of St. Patrick, was held on March 19 in the Philodemic Room. A well prepared and an interesting debate was held on the subject, "Resolved, that a third party would be beneficial to the United States," Messrs. T. Hayes and J. Wholhey supported the affirmative, while Messrs. E. Snell and J. Miniter defended the negative of this question. The affirmative was awarded the decision by a very close margin, and Mr. Hayes was chosen as best speaker. After a short criticism by Mr. W. Gillan and with a few appropriate remarks by the Rev. Chancellor, the meeting was adjourned.

P. C. O'BRIEN '24 IS WINNER OF QUICKSALL MEDAL.

The contest for the Quicksall medal was held last Sunday evening in the Riggs Library. This medal, which was founded by the late W. F. Quicksall, A.B., '61, is awarded for the best oral examination on three plays selected annually by the Dean of the College. The plays selected this year were, "Othello," "Anthony and Cleopatra," and "Coriolanus." Out of a large number of contestants, Mr. P. C. O'Brien, of the Senior Class, was adjudged the most proficient and received the coveted prize.

The School of Foreign Service has received copies of the first publication issued by the Fundacion Diario Bustamente of Havana, Cuba. This pamphlet covers the address given by Dr. James Brown Scott, professor of International Law in the School of Foreign Service and President of the American Institute of International Law, given before the Law Faculty of the University of Havana on February 8. The subject of the address was "The Codification of International Law."

Dr. Scott is head of the American delegation recently appointed by Secretary of State Hughes to collaborate with delegations from the other American republics in preparing a code of International Law for the Western Hemisphere.

Gaston.

Thursday evening, March 20, the Gaston Debating Society met in the Philodemic Room and discussed the question, "Resolved, that the compensation due to World War Veterans should be adjusted by the enactment of a Bonus Bill." Messrs. William Corbett and Christopher Clark upheld the affirmative side of this question while Messrs. Alexander Brauini and John Wise defended the negative. The question was capably and enthusiastically debated, and was of great interest to the society. The society awarded the decision of this excellent debate to the affirmative, and elected Mr. Corbett the best speaker. In the extemporaneous speaking after the main debate Mr. Holmes Clark was voted the best speaker.

The interest shown by the society in the extemporaneous debate is manifest by the fact that every member of the society took part in it.

"LITS."

The weekly meeting of the Literary Society was held on Monday evening in Room L. Mr. Castellini talked on "Tobias Smollett," who is characterized as "a vulgar writer, fond of horseplay and rough farce, but possessed of a vein of coarse, rich humor, and original genius." Mr. Kozak followed with a critique on Lawrence Stern, the author of "Tristram Shandy," and the creator of inimitable "Uncle Toby." When the subject was opened to the floor, a lively discussion ensued.

J. Wholey supported the affirmative, with a few appropriate remarks by the Rev. Chancellor, the meeting was adjourned.

The affirmative was awarded the decision in this exciting and interesting debate by a large majority, and Mr. Hayes was chosen as best speaker. After a short criticism by Mr. W. Gillan and with a few appropriate remarks by the Rev. Chancellor, the meeting was adjourned.

TRY OUTS FOR CONTEST HELD LAST SUNDAY

Preliminaries of Dixon Elocution Contest Held—Eight Men Chosen to Speak in Final Contest.

The preliminaries of the Dixon Elocution contest were held last Sunday evening, March 23, in Gaston Hall. Out of a large number of entries the following men have been selected to appear in the finals on April 13: Charles Clifford, W. I. Corbett, J. F. Dailey, Philip Dean, A. Maserick, James McInerney, Rutledge Slattery and Bernard M. Wagner. In the case that any of the above men withdraw, Louis La Place and Martin Harding will act as alternates. Each speaker will be allowed eight minutes for his speech in the final contest.

CLEVELAND ALUMNI TO HOLD DANCE.

The Cleveland Chapter of the Georgetown University Alumni Association will hold its annual dinner-dance on Tuesday, April 23. The affair will be invitational, and will be held at Hotel Cleveland. The committee in charge of arrangements includes Messrs. James A. Butler, chairman; Paul M. Miller, M. Foran Handrick, Joseph C. Breitenstein, Charles M. Mattingly, Bernard S. Brady, Edward T. Butler, Jr., and Timothy Welch.

The dinner given at Bartholdi's through the Hoya, by Mr. Bert Olmstead, is awarded this week to Mr. Stephen Melady, '24.
