

Naixin Zhu Class of 2012

Title of the thesis: Does a country's inflation rate influence the possibility of its involvement in a foreign policy crisis?

Thesis Advisor: Ph.D. John Christian

Policy Field: International Policy Development

Key Words: inflation, military spending, foreign policy, crisis, international conflicts, diversionary theory of conflict

Database and sources:

International Crisis Behavior Project Dataset 2, 1918 – 2004. College Park, MD: Michael Brecher and Jonathan Wilkenfeld, University of Maryland, 2007. Publicly available. Retrieved from <http://www.icpsr.umich.edu/icpsrweb/TPDRC/studies/09286>, March 28, 2012.

Military Expenditure Data, 1988 – 2010. Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, 2011. Publicly available. Retrieved from http://www.sipri.org/research/armaments/milex/milex_database, March 28, 2012.

World economic outlook Dataset, 1980 – 2016. International Monetary Fund, 2011. Publicly available. Retrieved from <http://www.imf.org/external/pubs/ft/weo/2011/02/index.htm>, March 28, 2012.

State Fragility Index and Matrix Time-Series Data, 1995-2010. Monty G. Marshall and Benjamin R. Cole, Georgetown Mason University, 2011. Publicly available. Retrieved from <http://www.systemicpeace.org/inscr/inscr.htm>, March 28, 2012.