ON OCTOBER 10 the appointment of Father Bunn to succeed Very Rev. Hunter Guthrie, S.J. as President of the University was announced by the Directors of the University. Father Bunn is no stranger to Georgetown, having been a member of the Administrative Faculty since 1948 as Regent of the School of Dentistry and of the School of Nursing. Nor is he a stranger to top educational administration, having served for six years as President of Loyola College, Baltimore.

By way of introduction, the ALUMNI MAGAZINE here presents an open letter to the new Rector from the President of the Alumni Association, and Father Bunn's reply.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Very Reverend Edward B. Bunn, S.J.,
President,
Georgetown University,
Washington 7, D. C.

Dear Father Bunn:

It is my good fortune, as President of the Georgetown University Alumni Association, to extend to you our most hearty welcome as you assume the Presidency of Alma Mater and to assure you that the organized Alumni are eager to work beside you in building a still greater Georgetown.

Our Association consists of more than forty-two hundred graduates and former students and professors of the various departments of Georgetown who support the work of the Association through the payment of annual dues to enable us in an organized way to be of assistance to the University, the student body and one another.

Perhaps this active body is smaller in numbers than similar groups from larger Universities, but I can assure you that in determined effort and loyalty they are second to none. During the last four fiscal years we have been able to keep the Association self-sustaining and to raise, annually, at least $150,000 towards our pledged gift of McDonough Gymnasium. We are now considering means of continuing this annual giving to Georgetown by the Alumni because we realize that Georgetown, like every other educational institution in America, cannot meet the tremendous operating costs of today out of tuition fees alone. As true sons of Georgetown we hope to give the necessary assistance.

Father Bunn, the officers and members of the Alumni Association want to work with you and the Jesuit Community in keeping our University in a place of leadership in the academic and spiritual world.

Yours very respectfully,

John J. Tunmore, '31, President.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

November 26, 1952

Dear Mr. Tunmore:

One of the most consoling features of my position as President of Georgetown is the quality of her Alumni. We do not need Diogenes' lantern to find outstanding men in distant parts of the country hidden away among the American communities and lost in competition with alumni from other great universities. In all professions the leadership of Georgetown men abounds. The most fortunate aspect of this leadership is reflected in the kind of man who has imbibed the cultural spirit of an institution that has its roots in our great early American heritage drawing its life-giving power from all that is best in Western civilization.

It is a source of strength and inspiration, therefore, to know that I have the support of such loyal men devoted and dedicated to the high ideals of venerable Alma Mater.

Sincerely,

Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President.
Washington Alumni Celebrate
Father Walsh's Jubilee

Possibly the most brilliant in a line of brilliant Alumni parties, was the dinner tendered to Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S.J., Vice President of Georgetown University and Regent of the School of Foreign Service in recognition of his Golden Jubilee as a member of the Society of Jesus. The dinner took place at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington on Saturday evening, November 15th, and was attended by five hundred of Father Walsh's friends and admirers among the Alumni and from official and civic life in the Nation's Capital.

Following a reception in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower, the doors to the Main Ballroom were thrown open to reveal an appropriate setting for the Jubilee Banquet. A Speakers' Table with fifty-four places was set with gold service plates and gold-rimmed goblets. Three wide floral centerpieces of golden chrysanthemums were placed along the table, surrounded with gilded leaves. The front of the table was festooned with hangings of gold, and over the head of the guest of honor was a golden "50" in numerals eight feet high. Standing at each place in the huge room was a program of the evening printed on golden paper stock.

The invocation before the dinner was pronounced by the Very Reverend Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Georgetown, after the singing of the national anthem. Following the serving of the banquet, the Chairman of the Dinner Committee, Hon. Charles Fahy, introduced the Toastmaster, Mr. Benjamin M. McHale, Editor of the Washington Star who, very brilliantly and efficiently handled the laudatory program. Introduced for very brief greetings to Father Walsh were His Excellency, The Most Reverend Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States who brought greetings to the Jubilarian from His Holiness Pope Pius XII. He was followed by Mr. E. D. Merrill, President of the Washington Board of Trade, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, Minister of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Chaplain of the Senate and Minister of the Foundry Methodist Church, Hon. Willard Beaulac, United States Ambassador to Cuba, Hon. Harold M. Stephens, Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, and General J. Lawton Collins, U.S.A., the Chief of Staff of the United States Army. General Collins presented Father Walsh with a citation for Patriotic Civilian Service signed by the Secretary of the Army.

In response, Father Walsh gave a most entertaining retrospect of his fifty years as a Jesuit against the background of the times in which he had lived. In doing so, he took occasion to pay tribute to the University.

"I would be dishonest to the facts and utterly insensitive to the influence of Georgetown University on my adult life if I were to omit tribute to her place and her share in whatever of merit you have discovered in the record of my years. Since 1789, contemporaneous with the Constitution of the United States, she has dwelt serenely on the heights beside the river, with her twin spires symbolizing what her corporate seal proclaims: Utroque unum. Science and religion dwell there in unity and academic harmony, while the eagle on her escutcheon gazes tranquilly and unafraid at every challenge of evolving time. No man could live under that roof as long as I have without yielding to the mould of her gentle strength.

"Her links with the great men of the American Revolution, and her traditions descending from far-off days blend harmoniously with her scientific equipment, her new buildings, her research projects, and all the other modernities that have multiplied in step with the tempo of the times. But her altars have not decreased and she does not hesitate to bid her students in this hustling age to kneel a moment before them as they hurry to the lecture halls or laboratories where physics or chemistry or biology or electronics or international law await their eagerness. In the engrossing search for the partial truths ascertainable in this visible life, she will not ignore the first cause of all life, nor the primal source of all energy, nor the universal law underlying all statutes nor the supreme anatomist behind the human body's marvelous form and structure. In a word, she bids all her sons, students, faculty and alumni, to see life steadily but to see it whole."

At the conclusion of Father Walsh's talk, the blessing was given by the Most Reverend Patrick A. O'Boyle, S.J., Archbishop of Washington.

Chairman of the Alumni Committee in charge of the dinner was Judge Fahy. His Vice-Chairmen were: Hon. Frederick J. Lawton, Director of the Budget; Dr. Joseph J. Mundell, Hon. Bolitha J. Laws, Dr. J. Garrett Reiley, Dr. William S. Culbertson and Edwin W. Beitzell, President of the Georgetown Alumni Club of Washington which sponsored

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY ALUMNI MAGAZINE
A View of Western Europe, 1952

By

REV. GERARD F. YATES, S.J.
Dean of the Graduate School

DURING THE MONTH of August, 1952, the writer had the honor of lecturing at the Summer Session of the University of Fribourg, Switzerland. Travelling to and from the little university city provided me with an opportunity to meet many Georgetown alumni and friends of Georgetown, and it may be of interest to the readers of the ALUMNI MAGAZINE to learn how ably Georgetown is represented in Europe.

A word about Fribourg. It is a name and a place dear to every Jesuit’s heart. There, in the year 1582, St. Peter Canisius, S.J., Confessor and Doctor of the Church, founded St. Michael’s College. It was to be the last of his many labors in the Counter Reformation, and at the foot of the main altar in the College Church his dear remains lie buried. The Jesuits have long since departed from Fribourg, but the work of the college is continued most ably by the diocesan clergy. St. Michael’s was the forerunner of still greater things to come, for, in the words of the present Rector of the University, “without the Collège St. Michael, there would be no University of Fribourg.”

The university, like all similar institutions in Switzerland, is maintained by the government of the Canton (analogous to a state in this country). Canton Fribourg, however, is one of the Catholic cantons of the Swiss Federation, and consequently the university is wholly Catholic in spirit and teaching—such is the feeling for local autonomy in Switzerland. Founded in 1889, the University is now entirely housed in modern buildings begun in 1940, one of the architects being the well-known French modernist Honegger. The Summer School owes its existence to the energy and vision of the Chancellor of the University, M. Hubert Aepli.

It is dedicated to the great idea that Catholics of all lands, having a common heritage and a common spiritual language, may find a meeting place in the Catholic center of Switzerland, the home of so many international movements, a peaceful island at the crossroads of Europe. Here they may develop their ideas and gradually make a real contribution to international understanding. Courses are offered in languages and literature, philosophy, history, political science and other fields. They are generally focused on some broad international or social issue of the present day. The faculty, specially recruited for the summer, represents many nations, as does the student body. Two Georgetown students, Frank Emneis and Aurelio Narganes, both of the Foreign Service School, attended the Fribourg Summer Session this year. It deserves to be better known among American Catholics and by Georgetown men in particular. I believe that a Georgetown house at Fribourg would be a marvelous asset to both universities.

One Georgetown man is more or less a permanent resident of Fribourg. He is John Parr, F.S. '39, M.A. '48, a key member of the secretariat of Pax Romana, the international organization of Catholic university people. While in Fribourg I also had a most pleasant reunion with Charles Ochsner, M.A. '46, Ph.D. '47. Charlie is Vice-Consul of Switzerland in New Orleans. This summer he was spending a long-deferred leave at home, introducing his lovely wife, a Texan, to the charms of Switzerland. Another Georgetown visitor in Fribourg, and also a former student of mine, was Harrison Smith, F.S. '39, M.A. '42, Ph.D. '50. He is at present a professor in the University of Maryland's extension program for American military personnel abroad.

It was mostly outside of Switzerland, however, that I found my contacts with Georgetown alumni. Leaving the Vulcania for a brief shore trip in Lisbon, I ran into my old friend and former student, Father Henry Vier, on the dock. He was down to meet some friends on the ship, having arrived by air from New York that morning. The chance encounter was a most pleasant surprise.

Before leaving Washington I had received invitations to visit several important military and political centers. The first stop was at Florence, where the Headquarters of Allied Air Forces Southern Europe are located. This is one of the Commands of the NATO forces, which includes American, Italian, Greek and Turkish units in its widely extended territory. Three Georgetown colonels are on the AAFSE staff—Col. Berkeley Harding, C '36; Col. Leonard Shapiro, M.A. '48, Ph.D. '49; and Col. Nathan Abbott, an M.A. candidate. Buck Harding was away on temporary duty, but I received a thorough briefing on the Command from Chapppie and Nate, both former students of mine, who are in charge, respectively, of programming, and operations and training. Also on hand was Col. William Clough, formerly stationed at Wright-Patterson AFB, who though not an alumnus is a loyal friend of Georgetown. I also met John Leonard Shapiro, Georgetown 1974, who will soon be in transitional training from bassinet to play-pen.

After leaving Fribourg at the end of the Summer School, I travelled through the Rhineland. At Heidelberg I had a brief but pleasant visit with Major Vincent Hearing, C '48, and his charming wife Denise, whom I had previously met by a lucky chance on the street in Fribourg as they were driving through, returning from a holiday trip to Italy. The war passed by old Heidelberg, leaving it quite untouched. It is, of course, a focal point for American occupation forces.

The United States High Commissioner for Germany, the Hon. Walter Donnelly, F.S. '21, LL.D. '52, was my gracious host at Bad Godesberg. The Russians managed to spoil, at long distance, a leisurely visit and compress it into a couple of hours, for their latest note on the proposed German treaty forced the Commissioner back to his office on a Sunday afternoon and later to make a night trip to Heidelberg. I had dinner with Johnny Brogan, F.S. '48, Walter Donnelly's assistant, on the terrace overlooking the Rhine at the Godesberger Hof. Afterwards we drove to the Commissioner's special train where he joined us for a most interesting two-hour conversation on German affairs before leaving for Heidelberg.

Dr. Walter Hallstein, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the German Federal Republic, gave a luncheon for me at the capital city of Bonn. Many alumni will remember that Dr. Hallstein was Visiting Professor of Comparative Law at the Law School in 1948-1949. He returned to Georgetown last spring for a three-day visit, to give the first really authentic exposition in the United States of the Schuman Plan, for which he is largely responsible. It was most interesting to discuss the important developments in establishing a united West European coal and iron industry which have taken place in the few months since Dr. Hallstein's visit to Georgetown.

It was at Wiesbaden, Germany, Headquarters of United States Air Forces Europe, that the biggest Georgetown welcome—at least in point of numbers—awaited me. There was a cocktail party at the Schwarzer Bock Hotel, attended by Maj. Gen. Truman H. Landon, USAF, Chief of Staff of USAFE, and by the following Georgetown Alumni: Col. Francis I. McGarraghy, C '29, L '33; Col. Thomas N. Arnett, L '39, LL.M. '42; Col. Archer E. Lackey, M.A. '49; Col. John F. Splawn, G '51; Lt. Col. Casrroll H. Harrison, F.S. '29; Maj. William P. Rockwood, G '51; John Penn, F.S. '47, M.A. '50; and Robert Donovan, F.S. '48. Chaplain (Col.) John Woods, Chief Chaplain, 12th AF, and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) John Stadta, Senior Catholic Chaplain, Hq. USAFE, were also present for the party and the dinner which followed it; and these two wonderful priests were a very welcome addition to our Georgetown family reunion. Col. Bob Puckett, M.A. '49, missed the dinner, but joined the Graduate School Air Force Alumni wing the following day for lunch, to which Mrs. Lackey, Mrs. Splawn and Mrs. Puckett also came. General Landon received me at the Headquarters for a wide-ranging conversation on the problems of the defense of Europe.

I next visited Brussels where the Rev. Alphonse Verhoosel, S.J., LL.D. '45, gave me a characteristically cordial welcome. Many alumni will remember Father Verhoosel, who spent four years at the Hilltop during the war, teaching modern languages in the Foreign Service School, and who is the friend of every Georgetown man and Georgetown cause. Together we visited the University of Louvain, calling on its distinguished Rector, Mgr. Honoré van Waeyenbergh, for one of my missions was to strengthen Georgetown's bonds with its sister universities abroad.

Brussels is also the home of Prince Jean d'Areenberg, M.A. '51. Like all the alumni I met in Europe he was eager to learn all the latest news of Georgetown. He proposed to establish a burse toward the expenses of any Georgetown student or professor taking courses or carrying on research in Belgium. I was most happy to accept his generous offer on the part of the University, and I take this occasion to thank him again publicly.

The region around Paris is perhaps the most important focal point of NATO. At Rocquencourt, near Versailles, the Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe, are located. When they were first established by General Eisenhower, they were the great but lonely symbol of the Atlantic world's cooperation in defense. Now, as the build-up of forces increases, other headquarters rise in importance, but SHAPE is still "supreme." Here I was the guest of Brig. Gen. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, an old friend of Georgetown and a personal friend as well. General Biddle briefed me personally on NATO and SHAPE. Afterwards at lunch I met Colonel Ed Black, candidate for the M.A. at Georgetown and a former student of mine; Colonel John Hauck, L '40; and many of the key figures on the American side of the SHAPE staff. I also had an interesting interview with General Alfred Gruenther, Chief of Staff to the Supreme Commander, General Ridgway, whom I had first met some years ago in Washington.

One of the newest NATO agencies in Paris is the NATO Defense College, located at the Ecole Militaire. Its purpose is to train officers of all NATO countries in the complex and delicate business of joint staff operations. The school was not in session at the time of my visit, but one of the senior staff members, Captain Andrew, R.N., gave me a thorough description of the curriculum and problems of the College. It is interesting to note that Col. Jack E. Babcock, USA, Ph.D., candidate at the Graduate School, was in the first class at the NATO Defense College, and by alphabetical precedence was the first to receive its diploma. He is now on the staff of Admiral Carney, Commander of Allied Forces Southern Europe, at Naples.

My last visit was to the headquarters of Allied Air Forces Central Europe, located at Fontainebleau. This is one of the key NATO commands, covering Europe from the foot of the Danish peninsula to the Alps, and including air force components from the United States, United Kingdom, Canada, the Netherlands, Belgium and France. Here, too, I met a former student, Colonel Bob Shafer, M.A. ’48. The Commanding General is General Lauris Norstad, USAF, a most able officer. He is very well informed about Georgetown, and we had a most stimulating conversation lasting almost two hours about graduate education for Air Force officers as well as about NATO strategy.

I did not lack for Georgetown company even on the homebound voyage. The first day out I met Frank Holmes, F.S. ’48, whose cabin on the Liberte was next to mine. Frank is now manager of the American Express Company’s office in Bonn, Germany. We passed many pleasant hours together aboard ship.

Perhaps I may now change my style from travel reminiscences and venture a few political observations based on my experiences of last summer. There is no doubt in my mind that Western Europe has made notable progress economically, politically and militarily since my last visit two years ago. The NATO build-up is a remarkable accomplishment. It is far from complete, as all admit; but it already amounts to a considerable force and is steadily gaining in strength. Meantime, it is an effective influence against neutralism. There is an abundance of political and economic difficulties to overcome. There is danger of Communist sabotage, both political and economic, in certain countries. Fortunately, postwar Europe has found some able statesmen to lead it—Adenauer and Hallstein in Germany, Schuman and Monnet in France, de Gasperi in Italy. On the military side cooperation in the multi-lingual, multi-national staffs and commands is most cordial. The soldiers, sailors, and airmen are showing the way to the politicians—who themselves (at least those whom I have named) seem often to be ahead of public opinion in their countries. Europe is working hard to save itself. If it cannot complete this task alone, this is not to be wondered at, given the history of the past fourteen years. The point is, it seems to me, that the salvation of Europe is a vital interest of ours and therefore a common task. Georgetown men can be proud that many of their fellow alumni are playing a prominent part in this great work.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY ALUMNI MAGAZINE
The readers of the Alumni Magazine don't have to be told that Georgetown has had more than her share of great basketball players. Billy Hasset, John Mehnken, Buddy O'Grady, Danny Kraus, Miggs Reilly, Andy Kosteca and Tommy O'Keefe are only a few. There are many more, too, but none have ever done more on the hardwood than the man who'll lead the Hoyas five during this season.

Last year this 6' 5", 210-lb. blond scored more points in a single game, 38, scored more points in a single season, 435, and took more rebounds off the backboards than any other basketball player in the history of Georgetown. A team player all the way, he didn't shoot any more than the others on the team. His prolific scoring is explained by the fact that he connected on more than 45% of his shots. Bill Bolger is his name, and the Hoyas are waiting for "The Bolge" to have the greatest year ever. When you consider all the things he did last year that will be quite an accomplishment.

Bolger will not be the only cog, however, in what should be a high-powered court machine. All in all, there are eleven returning from last year's varsity which rang up a 15-10 record. There are also four coming up from the JV.

Hugh Beins, 6' 7" center, will relieve Coach Jeannette of rebound worries if his leg allows big Hughie to play. Last year Hugh coupled with Bolger to dominate much of the season's backboard play. A fine all-around big man, much depends on how Hugh's injured leg responds to treatment. Another man who appears fairly certain of a starting berth is 6' 10" Lou Giganti. Still only a Junior, Lou is a take charge guy who sparked the team in their eight-game win streak toward the end of last season.

The other two starting positions appear to be wide open, but no one is going to be surprised if Bob Makatura sews up one of them. Bob has shown flashes of real court brilliance, and with two years of varsity experience behind him, this could be his year. Bob's chief competition for the second guard position will come from Tommy Doyle, Joe Carroll, Jim Larkins, Billy Wolfer and Bob Stuhr, any of whom could come up with the job.

The question of who is going to team up with Bolger at the forwards is also one which probably won't be answered until the opening game. Denny Murphy, who last year scored 10 points in the last quarter of the La Salle game to insure the great victory over those N.I.T. champions, may have the inside track. Murphy, like Makatura, has performed like an All-American at times. His main trouble has been consistency, and if he licks that the Hoyas could go all the way. Hustling Jack Hekker will crowd Murphy for the whole season. A driving lay up shot is Jack's forte, along with steady defensive play and a never-say-die spirit. Last year Coach O'Grady said that if the rest of the players had Hekker's fight the team might have won them all. Billy Storz, Jack Vail and Al Bontempo are the others who will fight it out for a forward position.

Hugh Beins' injured knee has posed a problem for Coach Jeannette, but Jerry Nappy could supply the answer. A well-built 6' 7", Jerry is bound to see considerable action. Joining Beins and Nappy in the fight for the center slot is 6' 6" Neal Conway.

The team has a lot of experience, a lot of height, and a lot of three-year-old press notice raves to live up to. Depth is lacking, but if Murphy and Makatura play the ball they are capable of, the Hoyas will do all right.

The Schedule: Dec. 9, Randolph-Macon Home; Dec. 13, Loyola Away; Dec. 17, Hampden-Sydney.

Charles J. Capozzoli, Georgetown University's famed Olympic distance runner, receives a plaque from Frank J. Prial, II, president of the Georgetown Club of Metropolitan New York, as Hoya track coach Frank Sevigne looks on. Presentation took place at the monthly dinner of the club in New York. The plaque is inscribed: "In grateful recognition of his athletic triumphs as a member of the 1952 Olympic Team, an extraordinary athlete, outstanding scholar, a credit to himself and to his Alma Mater, Georgetown University."
SPORT SHORTS: The Frosh basketball team should also enjoy a good year, as about eight former high school stars are wearing the blue and grey this year. . . . One of them is Joe Bolger, Bill's kid brother. . . . Another, Warren Buehler, led Bayonne High to the Group 3 State Championship last year. . . . Former Hoya hoop greats Tommy O'Keefe and Miggs Reilly are both brand-new fathers.

From Collier's magazine for September 13 comes this quotation from an article concerning grants for scientific study made by A. N. The laboratory now has at least seven strains of mice exhibiting abnormalities like those which characterize human nerve diseases. Dr. Pinckney J. Harman, College '34, Grad. '35, of the New York University College of Medicine, experimenting with mice, has discovered changes in the fatlike sheath around the nerve fibers similar to those found in humans suffering multiple sclerosis and amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, the mysterious killer that took baseball player Lou Gehrig's life. Harman is now working to see if any chemical may correct this defect. If he succeeds, it may prove possible to follow the same procedure in humans." Dr. Harman was made a Scientific Associate of the Jackson Memorial Laboratory at Bar Harbor, Maine during the past summer.

DR. JOSEPH S. WALL, Med. '97, M.A. Hon. '25, SCD '36, passed away last September 18. Following is an editorial from the Evening Star of September 19:

"Dr. Joseph Stiles Wall, dead at 75, was an outstanding physician, a statesman in the medical profession, a skilled teacher in the healing arts and, in his day, one of the best known doctors in Washington. Stories of young people were his pupils during 47 years at Georgetown University, and he remained an inspiration long after they had left his classroom behind. He represented the District Medical Society before committees of Congress on many occasions and was the father of the Healing Arts law of 1929, still in constructive effect. Notably eloquent, never at a loss for the right word, he also was a quick and decisive thinker. Back of his mind was a gentle and generous spirit.

When all this is said much still remains to say. Dr. Wall by deliberate choice devoted his talents particularly to children. He was on the staff of Children's Hospital for 56 years, the last 15 as chief; and incidentally he was a pediatrician at Providence, Georgetown and Gallinger and a children's consultant at Columbia and Doctors Hospitals, medical director of the Child Welfare Society and an advisor and counselor to numerous other agencies and groups. Belonging to 'the old school,' he nevertheless kept abreast of progress in his chosen vocation—and often was 'ahead of the procession.' His patients were legion, but his influence spread to a larger public indirectly. Hence he served the whole Washington community."

All the Washington papers paid similar tribute to Dr. Wall on learning of his death.
