GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY ALUMNI MAGAZINE: Published each two months by the Georgetown University Alumni Association Inc., Washington 7, D.C. • Sustaining Membership $25.00 per year, Regular Membership $5.00 per year, of which $3.00 is for subscription to the Alumni Magazine. • Entered at the Post Office at Washington, D.C., as Second Class matter February 24, 1918 under the act of March 3, 1879. • Editorial and Executive offices: GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION, Alumni House, 804 O Street, N.W., Washington 7, D.C.
On December 16, 1953, the first contributions towards the Alumni Association's first Annual Giving Fund were received as the postman dropped the first of the little gray envelopes with the punch-card contribution cards at Alumni House. As this issue of the Alumni Magazine goes to press we are delighted with the initial results of the careful planning which has gone into making the Fund possible. In less than six weeks, contributions totalling $30,104.46 have been received from 646 sons of Georgetown.

Our encouragement stems from several sources. First, the size of the average gift, $46.78 is considerably higher than the average for other College and University Alumni Funds last year. Second, out of one mail appeal, we have managed to obtain support from nearly four percent of Georgetown's former students. Perhaps the most encouraging note of all is the fact that there have been a large number of small gifts, ranging from one to ten dollars, from recent graduates whose generosity represents, we know, a real sacrifice. Many of these gifts were accompanied by notes saying "I wish it could be more." That frequently repeated sentiment leads us to have high hopes for the permanence and expansion of the Annual Giving Fund in the future.

The value of the Fund to the University cannot be overstressed. The present total represents, at $3\frac{1}{2} \%$, the interest yield on an invested endowment of more than $974,000.00. Georgetown has never had an endowment of those proportions, and it adds immesurably to our pride and pleasure to be able to provide her with a living substitute.

Most of the contributions in this early stage of the first year of our fund have come as a direct result of mail appeals. However, in most centers of Georgetown population throughout the country, Alumni Fund Committees are beginning their work which should at least triple the present total within a few weeks.

Each local chairman is furnished with a list of donors from his area so that those who contribute by mail will not be solicited in person. Contributions by mail are doubly valuable since they economize on the time and energy of the Committee members. Contributions now also have a double value, since the fine start and the steady growth of the Fund will serve as an inducement to others to get on the bandwagon.

The box-score below will be a regular feature of the Magazine throughout the present Fund year which closes on June 30. The score-board featured on the cover of this issue is kept up to date, hour by hour, and has caused much interest among faculty, students and visiting Alumni.

IMMUNITY STATUTES:
PRIVACY AND THE COMMON GOOD

Charles M. Whelan, S.J.
Editor-in-Chief, Georgetown Law Journal

Measures which will enable Congressional committees to circumvent the stumbling-block of the privilege against self-incrimination are under serious consideration in Congress. The Senate has already passed a bill which would enable committees to compel answers to incriminating questions, by exchanging immunity for information. The common people may wonder how it is possible for Congress to take away something which the Constitution grants; the answer lies in a Supreme Court decision towards the close of the last century, which held that a comprehensive immunity statute is a constitutional substitute for the privilege against self-incrimination.

Sound thought about immunity statutes is impossible without a thorough knowledge of the meaning and purpose of the self-incrimination clause in the Fifth Amendment. That clause, as it has been interpreted by the Supreme Court, means that a witness in any federal proceeding may refuse to answer any question the answer to which could be used against him in a federal criminal prosecution.

Whether the test of the availability of the privilege is that the truthful answer of the witness must be self-incriminatory or that it is sufficient for a possible answer to be self-incriminatory, is a question earnestly debated by the lawyers. It is settled, however, that the courts will not inquire what the truthful answer would have been; it is enough that the courts can see that one of the possible answers would incriminate the witness. As a result, as far as the law is concerned in its practical application, there are many questions which witnesses cannot be compelled to answer, regardless of their guilt or innocence.

The purpose of the privilege against self-incrimination, as authoritatively stated by the Supreme Court, is to compel the federal government to seek proof of crime elsewhere than from the lips of the accused. The common law history of the privilege shows that it developed as a protest against the inquisitorial methods of the ex officio oath and of the Star Chamber in the notorious climax of its operations. John Lilburn is the hero of the proponents of the privilege, and it is interesting to note that his protest was aimed at compulsion to answer incriminating questions where there had been no prior formal accusation, not at compulsion after such accusation.

The simple truth of the matter is that if the privilege against self-incrimination were wholly abolished, the federal government could send people to jail for refusing to tell whether they had committed crimes. Our whole system of criminal jurisprudence is designed to achieve the opposite result. Today, the federal government cannot punish a man for a crime unless it can prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he actually committed the crime. Tomorrow, without the privilege, the government could ask anyone an incriminating question, and conceivably send him to jail whether he remains silent, lies or tells the truth. All this in spite of the fact that the man may be perfectly innocent,

GEORGETOWN'S LINK WITH FRIBOURG

When a former Georgetown student and instructor was recently named to the faculty of the University of Fribourg, one more link was forged in the history of the relations between the two universities. The faculty and authorities of the Swiss university had made the revolutionary decision to introduce courses in American history and literature as a permanent feature of the university’s instruction and it was altogether fitting and proper that they should turn to the oldest Catholic university in America for someone to provide that instruction.

Furthermore, there was a long Jesuit tradition in Fribourg which made it quite natural that they should turn to the Society in America at this moment: The second movement which directly influenced the founding of the University was the liberal movement of the XIXth century—the renewal of philosophical, theological and historical studies which marked the pontificate of Leo XIII. Under the leadership of Georges Python and supported by the people of Fribourg, coinciding with the wishes of the sovereign pontiff, the University was inaugurated on the fourth of November, 1889.

Without the College of St. Michael, it is impossible to imagine that there would have been a University. It was the College which saw the utility and advantage of higher studies and provided the first buildings and professors of the University. In 1940, the strikingly beautiful modern buildings were completed and the University rapidly moved ahead in its mission as a Catholic and international institution.

In recent times, the new university has again come into informal contact with the Jesuits to whom it owes so much. In Georgetown, Fribourg has found a warm friend across the seas and gradually the relations between the two universities have become closer and closer. A few years ago a joint student exchange program was established and though a lack of funds has prevented full participation in this activity, several students have profited from it and the project remains in force. The latest participant was Philip Zuger who studied at Georgetown in the year 1950-51 under this agreement and who is now back in Switzerland, awaiting appointment in the Swiss diplomatic service.

Prominent in Fribourg-Georgetown relations has been the Briefs family. Godfrey Briefs was a student at the University while he was a secretary in the Pax Romana headquarters in Fribourg and Professor Goetz Briefs lectured in Economics during the Fribourg Summer School of 1950. Also in 1950, the Very Rev. Hunter Guthrie, President of Georgetown, was named to the Committee of Honor which sponsored the Fribourg Summer School and which was responsible for bringing some 500 Americans to Fribourg to study during the summer months.

During the summer of 1951, Rev. Gerard Yates, S.J., Dean of the Georgetown Graduate School, gave a brilliant course in political science in Fribourg and did much to increase the close associations between the two institutions. During the same period, Father Yates and Fribourg’s capable young Chancellor Hubert Aepli carried on extensive conversations regarding the possibility for future cooperation between Georgetown and Fribourg. Incidentally, Father Yates is probably the first Jesuit to say Mass at the tomb of St. Peter Canisius since the departure of the Jesuits from Switzerland.

ATHLETICS

By CHARLIE STEELE '52

When Georgetown dropped football a few years ago, there was undoubtedly much concern among the alumni for the future of inter-collegiate athletics at the Hilltop. It’s interesting then, and reassuring, to chart the progress of these sports during the past few years. Take the basketball team as an example. When Buddy O’Grady, resigned a new coach had to be signed. Some of the names mentioned as likely candidates made it seem possible that Georgetown was going to de-emphasize the hoop sport. Instead the new coach was Buddy Jeannette, an acknowledged top flight coach, and, as far as this column is concerned, the best man possible for the job. This was most reassuring. Coach Jeannette stepped into a unique situation. He had a team composed of twelve Seniors, four Juniors, and NO sophomores. This meant that when the 12 Seniors graduated, Jeannette would have only four men returning to the varsity. Of these four, only one was over six foot one in height. That was the set-up Jeannette faced, and as a result, this year, with the 12 Seniors gone, the Hoyas are lacking depth and height, and the record of the team will of course be influenced by that lack.

This is Buddy Jeannette’s rear guard action year. He’s doing the best that can be done with what’s on hand while waiting for reinforcements. The team has some promising sophomores, especially Warren Buehler and Bill Cowley, two 6’6” forwards who are leading the team in scoring. The freshman team, almost entirely hand picked by Jeannette, looks like a great club. 6’6” Joe Misсетt from Philadelphia is a strong, fast, extremely well co-ordinated giant who shoots from the pivot with either hand. Matty White from Staten Island and La Salle High School is 6’2”, with a deadly set, and tremendous drive. He too can really rebound. Hank Morano, from St. Peter’s Prep in Jersey City, is another 6’2” strong boy, with a great shot from anywhere. Dick Percudani, from Power Memorial of New York City, is a ball handler with real class, as well as a good shot. Dick goes an even 6’, Ken Rhode from St. Francis, Brooklyn and Dale Smith from Allentown go about 6’4” to 6’5”, can rebound with anybody, and can shoot. Drew Demmeade from West Catholic in Philadelphia and Dutch Wagner from St. John’s Prep, Brooklyn are the small men. They go about 6’, and both are good ball players. Ray Massa of Cincinnati, Dick Farrell of Seton Hall Prep, Tucker Dunn and Dan Devlin of Washington, and Frank Smith of Virginia round out the club.

So next year Coach Jeannette will have this year’s sophs, plus this year’s frosh. The height will be there. There will be one Senior on the team next year. He will be Frank Major, who has seen very little action in the past. So Jeannette’s great year is still two season’s away. However, you can see how Buddy is building. From the day he took over Georgetown’s basketball outlook has improved fantastically. The team is on the threshold of national prominence now. If they don’t attain it next season, there can be little doubt about it from there on.

The key figure in all this has of course, been Coach Buddy Jeannette. His team this year, though undermanned through a lack of Juniors and Seniors has looked very good. Their losses to date can be traced to lack of height and experience. One thing is sure, they are never out-coached or out-fought, and both of these qualities can be traced to Jeannette. As long as Buddy is the coach, the alumni need not worry about Georgetown going small time in basketball. If he is given the same backing next year that he was given the past two, the alumni can start looking for Georgetown’s golden age in basketball.

Among G. U. students at Fribourg, Dr. Harrison Smith represents solid achievement. Having been awarded a Ph. D. at the Hilltop after doing his work in Political Science under Father Yates, he came to Fribourg and in 1951 was granted the degree of Docteur-ès-lettres in modern history.

A few weeks ago, the present writer delivered the opening lecture in the American civilization courses at the University of Fribourg in the presence of the newly arrived American Ambassador, the Hon. Frances E. Willis. It has taken great courage and represents typically the spirit of the Fribourg faculty that they should be among the first of continental universities to recognize the importance of American studies. It is with a high sense of privilege and gratitude not only as an American but as a Georgetown alumnus that this writer takes up the cause of helping to bring a knowledge of America to Europe.

Prayerfully, it is hoped, that the high principles and illumination shed by the Jesuits at the Hilltop will inform the lectures in American literature and history at Fribourg and that this will mark the beginning of a new era of even closer relations between the two universities. Georgetown students and professors will always be welcome in the new office for American studies at Fribourg.

An expanded social program will provide a warmer-than-ever welcome for returning alumni and their wives at this year's Reunion just preceding the 22nd Postgraduate Clinic in Washington.

Dr. Louis Dubit, Dent. '29, General Chairman of the Clinic, has emphasized his desire for a thoroughly worthwhile attraction for Georgetown Dental Alumni.

Dr. Z. Bernard Lloyd, Dent. '38, gratified by last year's fine response of well over 200 graduates, has arranged a program starting at 1 P.M., on Saturday, March 13th, with a welcome from the Regent, Reverend Daniel O. C. McFadden, S.J., the Dean, Clemens V. Rault, Rear Admiral, D. C., U.S.N.(ret.) and Dr. James S. Ruby, executive secretary, Georgetown University Alumni Association.

There will follow a short talk of timely interest both to the alumni and their wives.

Table Clinics will be given by members of the five year reunion classes dating back to 1914. At 4 P.M. a reception will be held in the Student Lounge, where everyone will enjoy an hour's relaxation. The new feature will be found at the Shoreham Hotel at 7 P.M. when dinner will be highlighted by a welcome from the President of the University, the Very Reverend Edward B. Bunn, S.J., former Regent of the School of Dentistry.

On the morning following, Sunday, March 14, memorial Mass will be celebrated in the chapel at the School of Dentistry, followed by breakfast in the cafeteria.

An important item of real interest will be introduced at this Postgraduate Clinic. Since this shall be the first time any of the larger meetings will have starred a program of the size anticipated involving research in dentistry, the Committee is proud to announce "New Horizons in Dental Research in the Washington Area."

Greater Washington houses many centers of activity in dental research and from these will be drawn exhibits demonstrating investigation in dentistry's basic problems in materials, instruments, investigation and testing methods, and new techniques. Members of these research staffs will be in attendance throughout the meeting to answer your questions and make available first-hand information.

Such outstanding figures as Dr. Lester Burkett of Pennsylvania, Dr. Louis Alexander Cohn of Columbia, Drs. Irving Hardy and Daniel Holland of Tufts, Dr. Lewis Fox of Connecticut, and Dr. Gaylord James of Ohio will be found on the Registered Clinic program.

Table Clinics are to be held in two separate sessions so that attending dentists may cover as much of this program as possible.

Three Panel Discussions will cover the hotly debated fields of Occlusion and of Focal Infection; and the Cancer Society will present an extremely interesting feature in Oral Cancer Detection. An entirely new listing of late releases in films has been secured for Visual Education.

One of the truly memorable social events of this meeting is planned for the traditional Stag Night featuring excellent entertainment and food. Other perennial features of interest will be found in the Opening Luncheon, for which a top personality is being secured, in the colorful Dinner Dance, the fun filled Children's program, and the glamorous Fashion Show luncheon for the ladies.

Dr. Dubit joins with Dr. Lloyd in extending a most cordial invitation to all dental alumni to attend this memorable reunion, and the 22nd Annual Postgraduate Clinic which it precedes. Reserve the dates, check with your classmates, and make your reservations as soon as you receive your mailing.

Dr. James S. Ruby
Alumni House
Georgetown University

Dear Jim,

I was very interested in last week’s write up in the Sunday Star about the enthusiastic support and good all around results from the new intramural football program at Georgetown. The advantages of the “new order” are certainly apparent. It is great to be able to put aside a hundred thousand dollars or more each year for more of the uses for which a great university such as Georgetown was intended. It also strikes a bell to know that this program allows a greater participation in football for more students. Sorry to say that this wasn’t so when I was around the campus, when we had only Varsity squad to shoulder the honors.

But at this point, a bit of nostalgia creeps into my picture. I can’t help but remember just a few years ago when Georgetown was battling it out with Boston College for top football honors in the East. Spirit ran high those years both among students and alumni. I must admit tho, this spirit did run “high,” financially, too high. It was a shame that World War II prematurely burst this small bubble of fame. Then I can remember a few more years in retrospect, when Georgetown had only fair football teams, but fair enough to wallop Shenandoah or Lafayette or Bucknell, and occasionally, Maryland. We, in College those years, enjoyed these games. I think the Alumni did too. But we both thought then, that something must be wrong. It did seem silly to pay out so much for such little return, to hire such a big stadium for a few thousand people. Most of us thought then that Georgetown should either “blow hot” or “blow cold.” But none of us then, and not too many of us now looked forward to a “cease breathing” status as far as intercollegiate football was concerned at Georgetown.

Enough reminiscing, now for some constructive criticism. Let’s keep the student body and the College Treasurer just as happy as they now are. But let’s add a little glow to the faces of those forgotten Alumni. How to do all this? Well, let’s take inventory. What do we have on hand? First of all we have a lot of boys (non-scholarship, of course) who are willing, anxious and able to play football. I understand we have all the necessary equipment in good working order. We are now all set for a playing field for free and with the fence and gate around it could even visualize paying any additional small expense incurred, by a small admission fee. Also we are fortunate to have our coach, Jack Hagerty, still at Georgetown. What more do we need,—simply a couple of varsity teams which can be made up of the cream of our present crop and a simple, unpretentious schedule for each Friday, Saturday or Sunday with some nearby institutions who are as interested as we are in football and learning, and as disinterested as we are in New Year’s Day Games and undefeated seasons.

Who knows,—a few years of good behavior like this in football, and we might establish a trend,—maybe even a few converts right in our own backyard!! Let’s try it, and see.

Dear Doctor McMahon,

I was most gratified to read your letter to Jim Ruby anent the article that appeared in the magazine section of the Sunday Star.

First of all, I was impressed by the lucidity and simple elegance of the style which reflects great credit on you as a student in English Composition; secondly, and more important, by your grasp of the entire situation and the balanced judgment you manifested in appraising the problem.

Relative to the ability of the University to “put aside a hundred thousand dollars or more each year for more of the uses for which a great university such as Georgetown was intended”, I wish this were the Continued to Page 19 but because of suspicious or unusual circumstances in his life has an understandable desire to suppress the truth.

Immunity statutes, however, are designed to avoid the harm which would flow from an outright repeal of the self-incrimination clause of the Fifth Amendment. Under the typical immunity statute, when a witness invokes the privilege, the governmental agency which is interrogating him may compel him to answer, by giving him a legally enforceable promise that he will not be prosecuted by the federal government on account of any “transaction, matter or thing” concerning which he testifies in answer to the question which has been asked.

The purpose of an immunity statute is to enable the government to obtain information, the acquisition of which it considers more important for the common good than the punishment of the informer for his crimes. It is undoubtedly true that the wholesale exercise of the privilege in recent years has seriously hampered Congress, through its committees, in its efforts to obtain the information on which to base intelligent legislation. The problem is particularly acute in the area of subversive activity. With the possible exception of the Kefauver committee, the privilege against self-incrimination has been invoked more often in the hearings of the Congressional committees which deal with Communism than anywhere else.

Because promises of immunity entail bargaining with criminals, the Department of Justice has a serious interest in the working of immunity statutes. The present Attorney General has made it clear that he desires his office to have a veto power over offers of immunity to witnesses before Congressional committees. Since enforcement of sanctions is the duty of the Executive, it is reasonable for the Department of Justice to look with disfavor upon measures which could frustrate its efforts to see that criminals pay for their misdeeds. Immunity statutes which do not require the consent of the Attorney General make it possible for Congress or a Congressional agency to extricate a criminal just as the Department of Justice is closing in. On the other hand, statutes which do require the consent and approval of the Attorney General make it possible for him to render unavailable testimony which Congress could otherwise compel.

In addition to the serious problem of choosing the person or group to whom the power to grant immunity should be entrusted, there is the inescapable difficulty of choice between any immunity statute and the privilege against self-incrimination. Although immunity statutes avoid some of the dangers consequent upon abolition of the privilege, the fact remains that any immunity statute enables the government to do one of the things against which the privilege was directed: to interrogate any person about possible criminal activity on his part, without any prior formal accusation of guilt, and under threat of imprisonment for refusal to answer.

While it is true that under an immunity statute, the witness cannot be punished for what he reveals, it is also true that he can be compelled to reveal what might be of the highest importance to him, quite apart from any fear of prosecution, to suppress. The privilege against self-incrimination is a valuable safeguard of the privacy of the individual. In its practical workings, it permits the citizen to keep many of his secrets without fear of going to jail for his silence.

Where, however, revelation is essential for the common good, the privacy of the individual ceases to weigh heavily in the balance. The basic question which Congress, and consequently the people, must answer is whether the need for the information is so great as to justify whatever destruction of privacy must be wrought in order to obtain it. Once that question has been clearly resolved in the affirmative, it will be time to consider the measures which will minimize the dangers inevitably attendant upon the power of compulsion.

SANTA CLAUS VISITS HILLTOP

On December 23, the Georgetown University Alumni Association played host to the little children of the Georgetown faculty at a Christmas party in the band room at McDonough Gymnasium. Seventythree children, ranging in age from one to twelve were entertained with a professional marionette show, after which Santa Claus (Rev. Richard C. Law, S.J.) distributed jolly-pops, balloons and ice cream in front of the Christmas tree. Here Santa is being quizzed by John A. Zimmermann, 21 months, son of Harry A. E. Zimmermann, Registrar of the School of Foreign Service. The pipe is Harry’s, not John’s.

fact. Unfortunately, we are still paying for the losses incurred by football. So much of ordinary maintenance was neglected because of lack of funds in those days that it has required in the last three years double and triple the amount to make up for the neglect. Likewise, we were able to increase to some extent our salary schedule to meet the average level by preventing that loss. This year, too, we are inaugurating the Retirement and Pension program for our faculty and administrative staff. The outlay for the plan, from University revenues alone, will be $175,000 annually.

I agree heartily that the solution you recommend in your “constructive criticism” is the one to adopt as a policy for competitive football in the future. In fact, this has been our aim in the development of football among the students in the intramurals.

There cannot be any compromise with the commercialism that has grown up in college football. It must be a student game with all the students having the opportunity to compete and with student management as well. When this state of affairs is fully appreciated, I think that the administration here at Georgetown will be glad to consider intercollegiate football. As you say very well, “Who knows,—a few years of good behavior like this in football, and we might establish a trend,—maybe even a few converts right in our own backyard! Let’s try it and see.”

There has never been any attempt here to de-emphasize the game. Nor is there any opposition by the Faculty to competitive football on a student level. Athletics should exist in the American context of collegiate life for students’ participation and satisfaction. They, as individuals, not only develop a joy in the sheer activity of the sport, but also an “esprit de corps” as a group in the collegiate community. For this reason, any serious interest manifested by a number of students in a particular sport will always meet with faculty cooperation in assisting them to pursue that sport.

We have an Athletic Council which meets regularly to appraise the entire athletic picture so that the policy for improving student participation will remain dynamic.

With appreciation of your cooperation with us in this matter and wishing you the choicest blessings in the new year, I am

Sincerely yours,
Edward B. Bunn, S.J.
President
