The primary aim of 1789 is to serve Georgetown University: her students, her faculty, her alumni. The Dining Room and Pub are always open to those sons of Georgetown who seek a place uniquely suited to the best traditions of our University.

For those equally important, informal occasions the Tombs and the Coffee Shop, are keyed to Georgetown at its leisure. Private parties may be arranged at no extra charge.
Cover: Bernard A. Carter, C'49, is welcomed by Father Bunn and Bill Catherwood. On June 1, 1964, Barney assumed his duties as Vice President of Georgetown University for Alumni Affairs and Executive Secretary of the Alumni Association.
The four months since Jim's death have made more certain the place that he held in Georgetown's heart and history. A portrait of Jim along with a framed copy of the Eulogy given at the funeral by his good friend, Father McGrath, Academic Vice President, will hang in the Reception Room at Alumni House. The scholarship, started by his friends while he was still alive, will be completed by all those who cherish his memory.

BERNARD A. CARTER—NEW EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

On June 1, 1964, Barney takes over the Alumni Association's top operating post. He comes from the University of Pittsburgh where he headed its Development program. The four main areas of Alumni Affairs will be under Barney's control: records, communications, programs and University support.

VICE-PRESIDENT FOR ALUMNI AFFAIRS

Father Bunn and the Board of Directors of the University created this new post in recognition of the place of Alumni in University Affairs. Our Executive Secretary will fill this post also, thus insuring the liaison and cooperation between Georgetown and its Alumni that has to be of benefit to both. He takes a place along side the four other University Vice Presidents: for Academic Affairs, Business, Medical Affairs, and Development and Public Relations. By this post, the place of Alumni and their affairs is enhanced, and the interdependence of Georgetown and Her Sons and Daughters is acknowledged. He can voice the idea, interest, criticism and hopes of the Alumni on the highest level of the University Administration.
Barney Carter and his staff at Alumni House will visit all local clubs in the next year. We have worked out a program which will emphasize the University-orientated activities and you can expect all needed assistance in that implementation. Specifically, and these are in addition to the traditional social club activities:

2. Promotion of parties for incoming Freshmen, in late August or early September.
3. A Christmas dance for all students who live in the area.
4. Continuing education through an "instant lecture series" by a Georgetown faculty member.
5. Seminars for Club Leadership at the University or in the local areas.

We have tried to make the student conscious of the Alumni and have tried to become involved in student activities. For example:

- Support of all student functions when called upon—and frequently when initiated by us.
- Student leaders invited to Board of Governors Meetings.
- An annual student giving Fund directed by the students under the guidance of our Alumni Staff. This is student inspired and supported by the College, East Campus and Nursing Student Councils.
- An address to incoming Freshmen during Orientation Week by the Association President.
- An address to the Seniors by a member of the Board of Governors.
- An annual meeting of all student leaders with the Alumni Association leadership.

Repetition, the Jesuits always told us, is the mother of learning. But repetitive appeals for funds in the same year do not necessarily foster filial benevolence. Consequently, after a careful study, the Board of Governors, with the approval of the University, decided to combine the annual appeal for dues and University support, to be called: "Georgetown University/Alumni Annual Fund." It felt certain that all those who gave to both would give as much to a single appeal, and this by preference. Savings will be effected by the elimination of double records, double mailings, multiple printings. Confusion as to different purposes is eliminated.

Necessary expenses for solicitation, office personnel, Alumni programs, etc., will be charged against the Fund. The balance goes to Georgetown University for purposes either designated by the individual Alumni donors or for University annual operating expenses.

Control of the Budget stays with the Association, and thus our traditional corporate independence will continue. Final budget approval will rest with the President of the Association and the President of the University, jointly.

Since the interests of the University and the Alumni Association are so closely united, the joint approval by the respective Presidents will be an expression of mutual interdependence with the University.
One of the major Association projects has been The Alumni-Admissions Program. Working through our local clubs, Alumni have involved themselves in the talent search for outstanding scholars and student leaders by representing the Office of Admissions at College Nights. They, too, provide a most valuable personal interview with the applicant. The information received on the interviewer's report is used as one of seven criteria by the Office of Admissions. This gives the Admissions Office the opportunity of having first hand personal judgments on its applicants. Last year 886 out of 3100 students were interviewed. More volunteers are constantly sought to increase the scope of this important program. Write Barney Carter or contact your local Club President.

Last year's total of $275,000 from 6,300 was far out-distanced by the unprecedented sum of $405,000 from 8,100 donors in 1963-1964.
Three forces happily combined to smash previous records and put Alumni Annual Giving on a significantly higher level:
1) The leadership of Walter Schubert, College '51, National Chairman.
2) The regional and class chairmen and their volunteer workers.
3) The $50,000 Matching Gift—(Anyone for a Matching Gift for '64-'65?).

I have a few observations and one request. In 10 years Alumni have given over $2,035,000 to the University, and over 12,500 have contributed; this is better than 50 per cent participation by the Alumni. Add to the Annual Giving Fund the $90,000 contribution of the Alumni to the Association in dues during 1963-1964—and we talk of one-half million in one year. This is big-league thinking backed by big league performance.

My request: Be a volunteer worker, if asked. It will mean a call upon five of your fellow Alumni, generally from your own school and, if possible, from your own class. Any substantial increase in The Alumni Annual Fund must come from this selective solicitation.

 Alumni are interested in Georgetown Athletics. Bill Curtin's Athletic Committee of the Board of Governors, initiated and furthered the football game between Georgetown's Intramural All-Star team and Frostburg, cancelled because of last November's tragedy. The pot's boiling again for a similar game next fall—New York University or Fordham. Through means of personal support, the articulate advocates of a return of football to Georgetown have a chance to stand up and be counted.

We have asked for two seats on the University's Athletic Policy Board.

We are in close communication with the Athletic Moderator for a more geographically diverse schedule in basketball.

GEORGETOWN
1964 Dental Alumni Reunion

The Dental Alumni of Georgetown gathered for their traditional late Winter Reunion at the School of Dentistry on March 7. For the first time, the Reunion was an all day affair, a development which was prompted by the ever increasing number of Alumni returning for the occasion.

The scientific portion of the program began with an all morning clinic by Dr. Robert L. Kaplan '44 entitled "Principles And Techniques in Dentistry — Twentieth Anniversary." At noon, the Georgetown Alumni Association was the host for a buffet luncheon for all the Alumni. In the afternoon, the Alumni had the choice of attending either Projected Clinics by Faculty members or Table Clinics by Graduate Students and Senior Dental Students. The program at school ended with a reception given by the Alumni Association for all the visiting Alumni and their wives.

In the evening the Annual Dinner was held in the Terrace Banquet Room of the Shoreham Hotel. Guest of honor and featured speaker was the Dean of the Dental School, Dr. Clemens V. Rault who received from Father Bunn, the bronze John Carroll book-ends, for his outstanding contribution to the growth of Dental Education at the University. Also honored at the Dinner were Dr. Clarence J. Schweikhardt '23 and Dr. Herman F. Bernstein '26, both of whom were presented with a 175th Anniversary Medal of Honor. On Sunday at noon, a Memorial Mass was held in the Dental School Chapel for all deceased Dental School Alumni.

The success of this Reunion was evidenced by the large numbers of Alumni who attended the various functions. Over 325 registered for the program at the School, and 460 people were present at the Dinner. Judging from the many Post-Reunion comments, it was the most enjoyable of all yearly get-togethers!!

Dr. Henry Heim '54 was the General Chairman.

Clarence J. Schweikhardt, Father Bunn, Dean Clem Rault, Herman Bernstein, Henry Heim, Reunion Chairman.
MEMORANDUM TO THE ARCHIVIST,

The following article was written by Jim Ruby sometime in January, just before his death. We publish it because it is one of Jim’s last writings, and because it weaves into a single reminiscence some of Jim’s and some of Georgetown’s history: a reflection in words what was in reality.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY

□ My first real association with the University occurred in the Fall of 1916 when I was 11 years of age. I had served a Saturday morning Mass at St. Mary’s Church in Annapolis and on the way home on my bicycle, I passed the gate of the Naval Academy just as the old Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis two car electric train stopped at the Academy to discharge the Georgetown football squad which was due to play Navy that afternoon. With the team was a very stern, shaggy-eyebrowed priest in a black overcoat with an alpaca collar who glowered at everyone. When I got home, I asked my mother about Georgetown. She told me that it was in Washington, run by the Jesuits, and that she hoped that someday I might go there to school. I replied that having seen the unpleasant looking Jesuit, I would prefer to go somewhere else. Anywhere else. The priest, of course, was the late Vincent S. McDonough, S.J., and many years later I was privileged to take the most active part in raising the money to erect his memorial, McDonough Gymnasium.

I entered Loyola High School in Baltimore in September, 1919, and for my teacher in the Classics I had Mr. Frederick Henfling, S.J., who was a devoted teacher and a good one. He was my principal instructor during the two years I stayed at Loyola until we moved to Washington in June, 1921. During the summer of 1921, Mr. Henfling spent a few weeks at Georgetown and invited me over to see him. He gave me my first sight of the University, taking me through all of the buildings, which then consisted of Healy, Old North, Mulledy, Ryan, Maguire, and the old Ryan Gymnasium, as well as the Observatory. Two things impressed me most—The Shandelle Reading Room of the Riggs Library, and the names of famous Alumni on the walls of the Ryan Dining Hall. I hadn’t the slightest idea of their identities, but I decided that the very fact of the inscriptions on the Dining Hall walls made them very famous names indeed.

The football coach in those days was Al Exendine who had played for the Carlisle Indians with Jim Thorpe. Somehow Mr. Henfling managed to get a season football pass from Exendine and gave it to me. By Fall, I was enrolled at Gonzaga High School in Washington, and throughout the season the pass was put to great use. I would enter Griffith Stadium using it in lieu of cash, then throw it over the fence to my classmates waiting below. If Georgetown football games turned out big crowds in those days, I was responsible for about thirty of them at every game played in the stadium. Mr. Henfling was not here in the summer of 1922, so I missed all of the games.

At the graduation at Gonzaga it had been for many years the custom to award two scholarships to the two top graduates in the class. Scholarship number one was for the top man in the class, and was designated for Georgetown. Scholarship number two went to the second man and sent him to Catholic University. Our number one man was Charlie Henlock who decided to enter the Society of Jesus instead. Number two man was Raymond Kirchner who wanted Engineering and was delighted to take the Catholic University Scholarship. With the defection of Henlock, I as number Three, got the Georgetown Scholarship. Within a year Henlock quit the Society, and Kirchner resigned at Catholic University to become a Pre-Medical Student at Georgetown, but my Georgetown education was assured.

Registration at Georgetown was simple in those days as compared to the elaborate formations of these later years. I merely came to the Healy Building in which the Dean’s Office was located at the foot of the main stairway and told Father TalIon (known to the students as “Mother Superior”) that I wanted to come to College on the Gonzaga Scholarship. He had but one chair in his office other than the desk chair upon which he sat. The visitor’s chair was a very low Morris chair beside the Dean’s rather high desk. That meant that the student or prospective student had to sit well forward and struggle to be seen, putting himself into a highly nervous state and giving the Dean a distinct advantage. The Registrar was Tom Kernan of the College Class of ’22, who had remained to take a Master’s degree and left a few days after I registered to work for Conde Nast, A.B. ’94, publisher of Vogue, Vanity Fair and House and Garden. Tom is now editor and publisher of Paris Vogue, with headquarters in Paris. He gave me a very simple one-page form to fill out, and I was registered as a student.

My plan was to stay for one year only and then to accept an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. I was to have entered in the summer of 1923, but I failed the entrance examination in Mathematics. I tried again in the spring of 1924 but I failed again by reason of being unable to touch the floor with my finger-tips, a feat which I have not as yet mastered. Hence I still find myself, forty years after my registration, still at Georgetown and glad to be here.

Physically the plant has changed greatly since those days, Healy alone remaining pretty much as it was, excepting for the main foyer at the north end of the building. The grand staircase had a space behind it, with a frosted glass panel behind the stairs. By a strange coincidence, the R.O.T.C. Rifle Range was in the basement under the foyer. The glass had to be replaced every few days because ricocheting bullets broke it with great regularity. On the second floor, above the foyer, was the Coleman museum consisting of a large room in the space now occupied by the President’s suite of offices. The museum contained a number of things which have since vanished. There was a large, labelled collection of rocks and minerals, a large collection of stuffed “birds of America,” and for some reason the cadet coat worn by General Custer when he studied at the Military Academy. There was also a stuffed head of a bison, reputedly shot by Buffalo Bill on the western plains, and some leaved picture frames containing several hundred photographs of Georgetown men who had served in World War I. The bison’s head was nick-named “Shaggy Vince” by the students, in tribute to Father McDonough.

Old North was then the residence hall for seniors. The western end of the structure, where the S.P.O. now functions was the Senior Classroom, and the tower housed the “Philosophers Library.” The classroom extended from front to back of the building, and not until the summer of 1925 was the present corridor extended to provide access to New North which was built during that year. That extension, naturally, shrank the old Senior classroom to its present size.

At either end of the corridor of Old North there was a graceful curving staircase to the floors above. The original fanlight over the main door was still in position. The first, second and third floors were occupied by Seniors, four to a room. The fourth floor was an open dormitory with rows of beds along the walls and an aisle between. That floor, known as the “Blimp,” was reserved for students who had incurred the wrath of Father McDonough for disciplinary infractions. He sentenced them to varying terms of sleeping in the unheated room for such things as “late lights,” noise, etc. Students caught coming “over the wall” were also sentenced to the “Blimp,” but anyone staying out after 3:00 A.M. was automatically expelled, unless he had an airtight excuse. Father McDonough would, however, accept an excuse which was original enough to amuse him. One such that I remember was the case of a student with a midnight permission who got in about 1:30 A.M. He told Father McDonough that he had been waiting for a streetcar at Dupont Circle, and that just as it came, a military band on the circle struck up the National Anthem, and that since he had been trained to stand at attention, he missed the car. McDonough let him off.

Father McDonough’s Office was on Second Healy, under the clock tower. There students checked out for the evening, but they usually checked in in the College Store which occupied the river side of Maguire from the Healy end to about two-thirds of the length of the building. The remainder of the floor contained a dining room for the lay faculty who in those days received lunch as part of their salaries. Across the center corridor on the Quadrangle side was a Physics lecture room which could be darkened for slides and motion picture film. That room ran the building’s entire length. In the passage between Maguire and Ryan, most of the student body assembled after breakfast for mail-call which consisted of one athletic scholarship man with a basket of mail. He would call the names and if he heard, or thought he heard an answer, he would toss the envelope or package at random. When I was a Freshman, the mail-caller was Tom Scalley, now a distinguished judge of the Municipal Court of the District of Columbia.

The basement corridor of Healy was used as an indoor running track, and as late as 1947, the floor still bore the cleat marks of some of Georgetown’s great track performers as far back as Arthur Duffey. The Chemistry laboratories occupied the classrooms on that floor, and on rainy days, particularly, the stench of H2SO4 made the Classrooms above almost untenable.

In my first two years at Georgetown, the basement of Old North still had a dirt floor. The only object occupying the basement was a World War I Victory engine for an airplane which had been used for instruction purposes for the Students Army Training Corps, known as S.A.T.C. (Safe at the College).

The top floor of Mulledy was used to house the Athletic Scholarship men frequently over the protests of the Jesuits in the floor below.

One of the great commodities bought by the students in those days was milk, purchased in half-pint bottles in the College Store. I don’t remember the price, but five cents was added as a bottle-deposit. On returning the bottle, and a metal bottle deposit disk, the student retrieved his nickle. Very often, in protest against some real or imagined affront at the hands of the Administration, an hour was set secretly, to throw empty bottles, simultaneously into the Quadrangle, which made a very remarkable noise, and we would see the “skips” in the morning cleaning up large amounts of broken glass. At Mass on the following Sunday, the Offertory Collection consisted mainly of milk checks.

The term “Skip” was applied to the custodial help who swept the corridors, made the beds, etc. I was told that the term probably referred to the Irish game of Curling, in which the goal keeper wields a broom to protect his goal.

Among the skips was a very elderly colored man known as “Willie Pick-up” who suffered from some spinal affliction which kept him bent over at almost right angles at the waist. His job was to use a stick with a spike at the end to pick up papers, etc., on the ground. Around 1925, Willie died, and since someone remembered that he had worked at the College for more than sixty years, the Jesuit Community decided to buy a lot in one of the local cemeteries, purchase a simple marker, and bury him decently. The problem of a name arose, since Pick-up is certainly not a local name. At that point Father Archer remembered that before his affliction, he was known as Willie Chambers. The stone was cut accordingly, and when the invoice arrived at the Treasurer’s office, old Father Cowardin saw it and said to the Treasurer, “What’s this for?” The Treasurer answered, “Oh, that’s for the headstone for Willie Chambers, you know, Willie Pick-up.” Father Cowardin replied, “His name wasn’t Chambers, that’s what they called him before they put the plumbing in the Healy Building.”

What is now O’Gara Infirmary was, when I entered, the Carpenter Shop. In a small plot of land beside it two sheep were penned, apparently for some experimental work at the Hospital. One had a small pink stain on its side, the other a greenish one. We always referred to them as “A.B. and B.S.” on the theory that they would be used to make diplomas. (END OF MANUSCRIPT)
SPRING SPORTS

Snow the first of April, rain the rest of the month, and sleet the first of May. Baseball players trying to limber up their throwing arms in McDonough Gym while lacrosse players dodge baseballs and tennis players dodge both. Trackmen and oarsmen practicing regardless of the weather, and golfers trying to find a dry course within 50 miles of Washington.

What looked to be one of the more promising years for the fair weather sports has apparently succumbed to nature. In the short month and a half allocated to spring sports, coaches are dependent on the weather to provide their boys with maximum practice time and game exposure. This spring, the worst seen in Washington in at least three years, has left coaches muttering under their breaths, and caused players to retreat to the libraries to study.

TENNIS AND GOLF

After two losses in the Cherry Blossom Tournament — that meet being classed as an exhibition, the tennis team has managed a 5-3 record and will probably finish on the .500 side of the ledger. Ron Goldman, a sophomore, has held the number one position in the constantly shuffling lineup. Other standouts have been Jed Courtney, Bill Hodgman, Jay Bowes, Joe Clancy, Dick Hanford and Dean Gargaro. Coach Bob Thomas rates his undefeated freshman among the best he’s ever seen.

At this writing the golf team has compiled a meager 2-6 record and show little promise of improving. They are captained by Tom Ryan with senior Greg Kepley, and juniors Bill O’Hara, George Baldwin and Bill Dolan in support.
BASEBALL

Coach Tom Nolan envisioned the best team in his six years as head coach only to see nine of seventeen games scheduled for April rained or snowed out. As May rolled around the Hoyas nine showed a disappointing 4-4 record, and the tiring prospect of a game every day for the next three weeks.

The Hoyas started in the right column, defeating powerful Delaware 1-0 behind the two hit pitching of last year's Most Valuable Player Bob McCarthy. The diminutive but heady junior also hurled a 4 hitter in beating Pittsburgh 3-2. Nolan has gotten top performances from basketball player Jake Gibbons who set down Catholic U. on three hits and dropped a 2-1 decision to Pittsburgh. The 6'5" sophomore with a tricky fastball and a sharp curve has fashioned a .056 earned run average. Sophomore outfields Ric McLaughlin and Tom Hamm have been ripping the ball, each hitting about .400. McLaughlin, from Billings, Montana hit safely 12 times in his first 17 at bat. Hamm blasted a 450 foot homer against Howard. The only serious blow to Nolan's plans has been the loss of shortstop Marty Vickers with a kidney injury. Vickers had been playing errorless ball and was hitting .318. He had hit .300 his first two varsity seasons.

CREW

The proudest outfit on campus gained a new coach and five straight victories before losing their first regular season races in three years. Commander V. G. Sanborn resigned from a paying job at George Washington to replace Don Cadle as head coach. Cadle left for Germany to manage his family business.

The Hoyas crews swept the river four times before being upset by St. Joseph's. The following week Marietta, who upset the Hoyas last year in the Dad Vail Championships, tromped the Georgetown freshmen, lightweights, junior varsity, and varsity to knock the Hoyas out of the favorite's role in this year's Dad Vail. After that regatta, Sanborn's men will enter the Olympic trials for their first shot at major college crews.

LACROSSE

In their second year of existence and with one year remaining before gaining official university recognition, the team has stirred up a great deal of interest, and recorded a 10-9 victory over Villanova. Over 40 boys have stayed out for the squad, coached by Tom Daly and captained by Roger O'Neill and John Campbell.

SAILING

Having sailed in only two regattas, the sailors have stamped themselves the early favorites for the Jesuit Cup. Commodore Joe Kelly's men sailed to a third place in the Navy Invitational and garnered an overall second in the Spring Championships of the Middle Atlantic States Sailing Association.

Steve Langhoff 68, Brian Murphy 62, and Captain Roger O'Neill 90, move into the action against Baltimore University.
Putting the best individuals together for an attempt to end Villanova’s domination of the Eastern relay circuit, the thinclads warmed up with a record 10:08.9 distance medley at the Iona Relays. The team was loaded, with half-miler Ed Schmitt (1:55.5), quarter-miler Dan Lanigan (1:49.9), and powerful Ed Duchini in the three-quarter mile. But it was anchorman Joe Lynch who nailed down the victory and the record. Given a thirty yard deficit, Lynch caught the pack and took the lead with 220 yards remaining. He pulled away easily, posting a 4:13.5 clocking.

In the Penn relays, the Hoyas dropped a close decision to Villanova, running a 9:58.5 to the Wildcat’s 9:55.0. Coach Steve Benedek plans to use Duchini in the half mile invitationals for the rest of the season. The New York junior will try for a repeat win in the Quantico Relays, and should be near the top in the Nationals.

Dr. Vincent R. Pennisi, M ’50, President of the Georgetown University Alumni Association of Northern California, advises that the Medical School Alumni of Georgetown will meet at a cocktail party during the Annual Meeting of the American Medical Association in San Francisco. The party will take place on Sunday, June 21, 1964, at 6:30 P.M., in the Baldwin Room of the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Those to be ordained are three former Georgetown teachers, Mr. John R. Donahue, S.J., Mr. G. Harry Hock, S.J., and Mr. Louis B. Pascoe, S.J. From 1958 to 1961 Mr. Donahue taught Classics and was moderator of the St. John Berchmans Society and the HOYA. Mr. Hock taught mathematics at Georgetown for one year and was Moderator of the St. John Berchmans Society. Mr. Pascoe came to Georgetown in 1958 where till 1961 he taught Classics and moderated the Gaston-White debaters.
